Live virtual dating show premieres Aug. 23

LIME ARTS PRODUCTIONS - SUBMITTED
Antoine "Anto" Johnson Jr., 22, will star in the new virtual dating show "Love in Lockdown." The program is created by RDA Producing and Lime Arts Productions, which produces work in the Imperial Valley, Sacramento and Humboldt County.

Lime Arts Productions and RDA Producing will present a live virtual dating reality show in which contestants go on dates hoping to find true love — in front of a live audience.

Episodes of "Love in Lockdown" air live at 6 p.m. on Aug. 23 and 30 and Sept. 6 and 13.

Viewers can tune in anonymously on Zoom each week for $3 an episode or $10 for the entire four-episode season. Can't tune in live on a Sunday evening? Episodes are available to stream for up to a week. Tickets and subscriptions are available for purchase at www.limearts.org/shop.

This pilot season will follow bachelor Antoine Johnson Jr. as he goes on dates with 10 women from around the country in hopes to find true love. Each week, the contestant pool will be cut in half as Johnson selects women to move forward based on his compatibility and connection with them.

The unseen live audience will have the opportunity to anonymously weigh in and allow for a contestant to make a second (or third) impression. The season culminates as Johnson chooses his potential soulmate to go on an hour-long final date. This last live date will close with the couple-to-be deciding whether they want to continue their relationship after the cameras stop rolling.

The entire-Latino producing team conceptualized this series to illustrate a dating show that's reflective of the country's racial makeup and to put BIPOC (Black, Indigenous and people of color) love and joy at the forefront, according to a press release for the program. Lime Arts Productions and RDA Producing have committed to casting at least 60% BIPOC each season.

Johnson, better known as Anto, is a 22-year-old African American man who was raised in Aberdeen, Washington. As a child, he found himself constantly wanting to help others as he faced many challenges at home, finding his purpose within the stories he penned through his music. It wasn't until his time at Linfield University that he found the perfect medium to express his creativity and share his voice — acting. His time spent on stage further developed his passion for the creative arts and cemented his love for music and acting. He has always been a fan of dating shows such as "Love Island" and hopes to meet a woman who is strong, like his mother, and unafraid to speak her mind — someone who can communicate and is willing to grow with him as they both chase their dreams and explore the world.

Lime Arts Productions is a production company that strives to make inspiring, innovative and intimate art accessible to all — currently producing work in Humboldt County, Sacramento and the Imperial Valley. (For more information, go to www.limearts.org.)

RDA Producing is committed to creating spaces and access for underserved communities, programming entertainment that provokes discussion, and fostering new work development. RDA is currently producing in an exclusively digital format.
